

THE POETRY OF MEDICINE

June 19th 7-8pm in the Salvin Room, Keele Hall, The University of Keele, Staffordshire.

An evening with local poets who have won awards in the International Hippocrates Prize for Poetry and Medicine, who will read their own work and poems on medical themes by writers from other times and countries.

The evening is curated by poet and professor Michael Hulse (Warwick University) and the poets reading are Roger Bloor, Laura Dawes, Karen Schofield, Val Thompson and Mary Williams.

There is no entrance fee.

This free event is aimed particularly at Keele Medical and Humanities students and tutors but all those within and without the University are welcome.

As an added bonus there is complimentary wine and refreshments.

PLACES ARE LIMITED
SO WE ADVISE THAT YOU BOOK YOUR PLACE BY CONTACTING PENNY
GILCHRIST AT
P.A.GILCHRIST@KEELE
.AC.UK